Shield Your Business: Thriving in the NIS2 Era

Discover how to safeguard your business in the NIS2 era at our exclusive event with Cork Chamber and Viatec Technology Group on 17 October at The Montenegro.

As October nears, the implementation of the NIS2 Directive in Ireland is poised to introduce substantial regulatory changes, essential to secure cybersecurity measures, incident reporting and accountability for member companies. Non-compliance can result in significant fines, aiming to enhance cybersecurity resilience across the sector.

Recent Chamber Security Centre highlighting 'The Greater' role of digital cybersecurity in the next few years, organisations are now looking for their trusted partners for support.

As a complete cybersecurity solutions partner to organisations throughout Ireland, it's a team of experts that have been supporting our customers through the journey to regulatory compliance and creating a robust cybersecurity strategy that protects the business in order to establish robust cybersecurity measures, understanding regulatory requirements and establishing a cyber resilient culture are paramount for success.

Five Pillars of Cyber Resilient Organisations

Cyber resilience is the ability of an organisation to prepare for, respond to and recover from cyber threats. Establishing a cyber resilience across your business is crucial. This involves not just investing in technology and requires a cultural shift within the organisation.

- Managed Security Services: Managed security services provide continuous monitoring and protection against cyber threats, ensuring systems are always secure.
- Email Security: Protect communications with advanced email security solutions that detect phishing, malware and other email-based attacks.
- Cloud Security: Secure cloud environments with comprehensive cloud security services, safeguarding data and applications.
- Ransomware Protection: Implement robust ransomware protection strategies to prevent, detect and facilitate quick recovery in case of an incident.
- Regular Cyber Training: Regular cyber training equips teams with the skills to assess situations, flag potential risks and create a common sense of awareness throughout the organisation. This proactive approach is essential in building a cyber resilient culture.

The Regulatory Landscape

The three landmark is currently exploring with cybercriminals becoming more sophisticated in their tactics with the introduction of NIS2, the regulatory environment is becoming even more stringent.

It's also time to increase the cybersecurity resilience of critical infrastructure and essential services across the EU. For businesses in Ireland, this means increased scrutiny and higher penalties for non-compliance. The impact will affect every business, either directly or through their supply chains. This is a significant risk, and organisations need to be prepared.

The Importance of Partnership

Partnership is key to effective cybersecurity. No company can do it alone. At Viatec, we partner with our customers to understand their unique needs and provide tailored solutions. We also partner with global thought leaders like Fortinet to leverage the best technologies and innovations in cybersecurity.

This collaborative approach allows us to offer comprehensive protection that addresses the specific risks and challenges faced by our customers. Together, we have the power to create a safer digital world for all.
